the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age is expected to increase from 1.2 billion to 1.5 billion.

As the world's population grows, the demand for food and other resources will increase. This will put pressure on the environment and on the world's food supply.

One way to meet this demand is to increase the amount of food that is produced. This can be done by using more land for agriculture.

Another way to meet this demand is to increase the efficiency of food production. This can be done by using better farming techniques.

Both of these methods have their own problems. Increasing the amount of land used for agriculture can lead to deforestation and loss of biodiversity.

Increasing the efficiency of food production can lead to the use of more pesticides and fertilizers, which can be harmful to the environment.

One solution is to use a combination of these methods. This would involve using better farming techniques on existing farmland.

Another solution is to use more land for agriculture, but in a way that is sustainable. This would involve using techniques that protect the environment.

There are many other ways to meet the world's growing demand for food. The key is to find a way that is sustainable and that protects the environment.

One of the most important things we can do is to reduce the amount of food that is wasted. This can be done by eating less meat and by using food more efficiently.

Another important thing we can do is to support local farmers. This can help to ensure that there is enough food to go around.
