I received cute answer by mail when I helped my little sister to order doujinshi: "price of my body 200 yen" hehe, cheap... <Big brother> 16-years>

体代 200 円

Hey! Are you listening?
I called you!

Translator's note:

The point of joke in the reader's comment is probably in miswriting. (assuming that in 80s japan, little sisters we're not selling themselves for the price of doujinshi) Kanji that means book 本 contains the same elements as kanji for body 体.

Yay Yay People!

Yesterday, I saw under the skirt of a cute girl when she was sitting at train-station. She looked at me and smiled. I almost cried of joy.

Oh no,
not this
cheap food
again...

At last papa's
salary arrived,
it feels like a
boss!

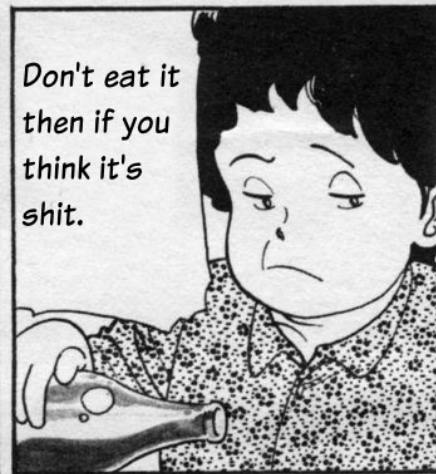

ズン

Can't help it.
It just happens
to be my habit.

Finally
I have free
time, but
you just
fiddle your hair...

Don't eat it
then if you
think it's
shit.

Yeah yeah,
mom has to take care of
everything...

Besides this is pretty
good.

You're just
like your father,
you just complain
about everything,

You didn't have to answer!

Hmph,
so
vulgar.

This
can't
go on.

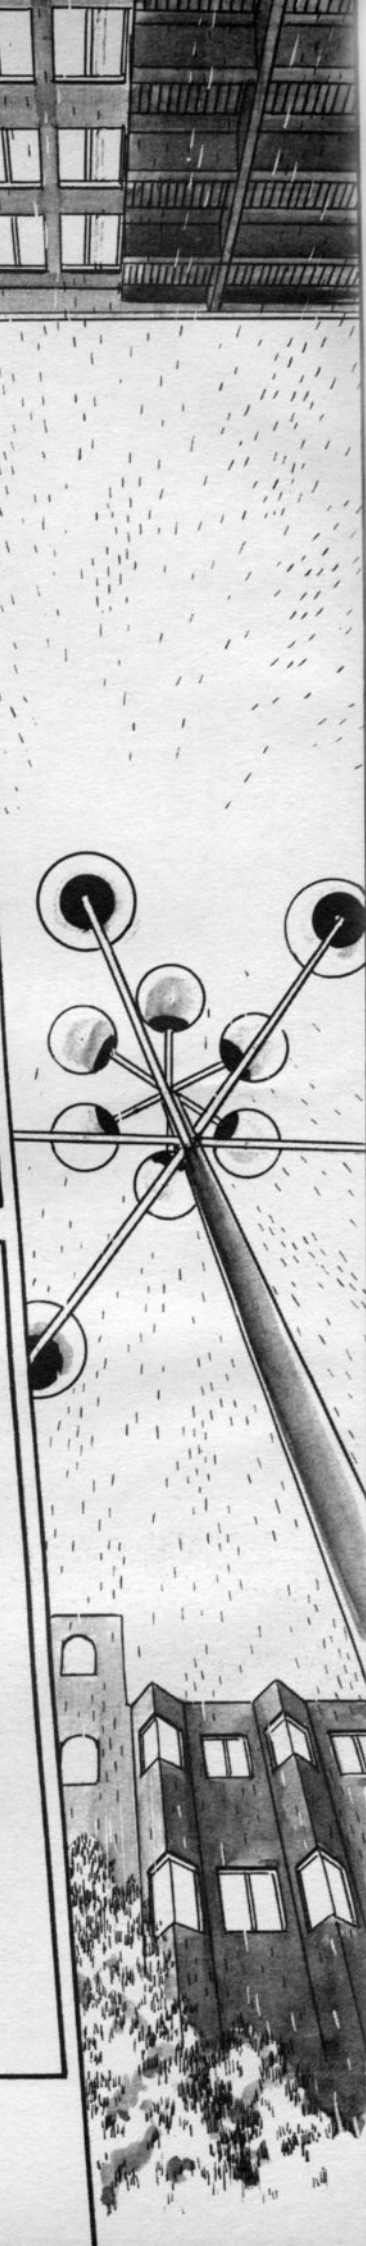

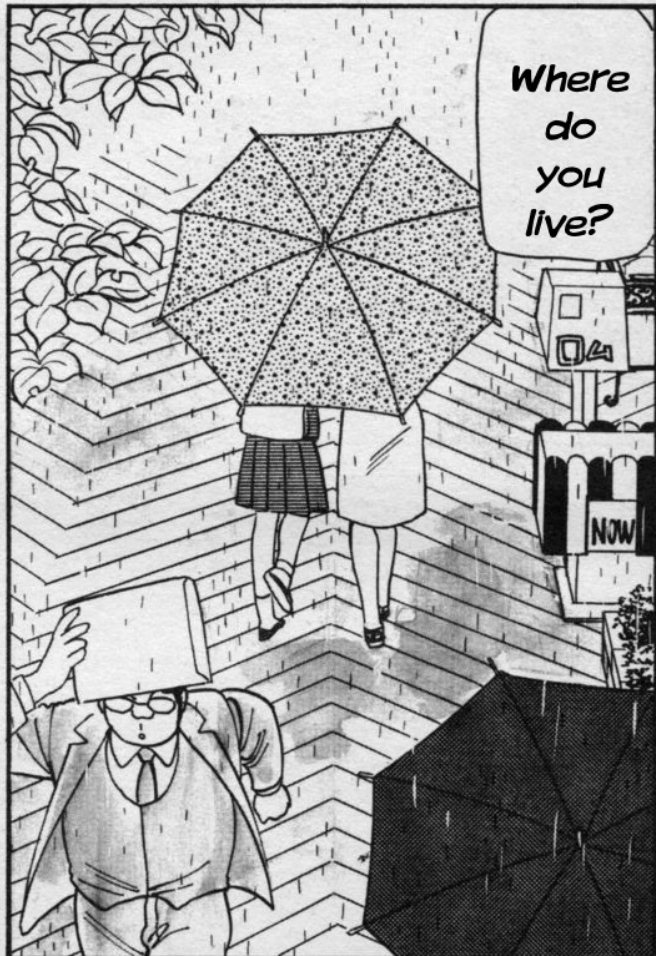

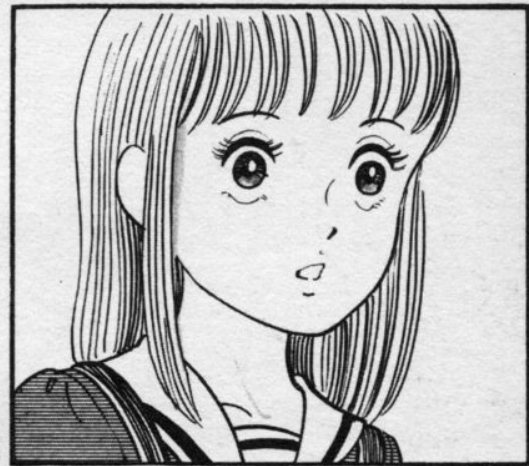

Oh no, my mother
shouldn't be like cow,
but that's what it
looks like!

I have heard that my true mother
is very beautiful person, but that she left me or something like that.
Maybe she's a princess who lives
in a castle...

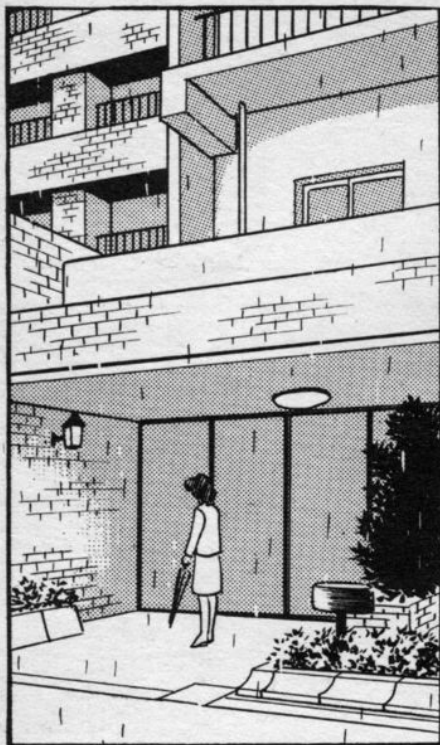

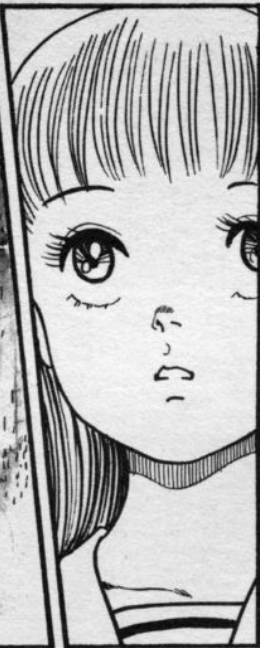

Yay Yay
people!

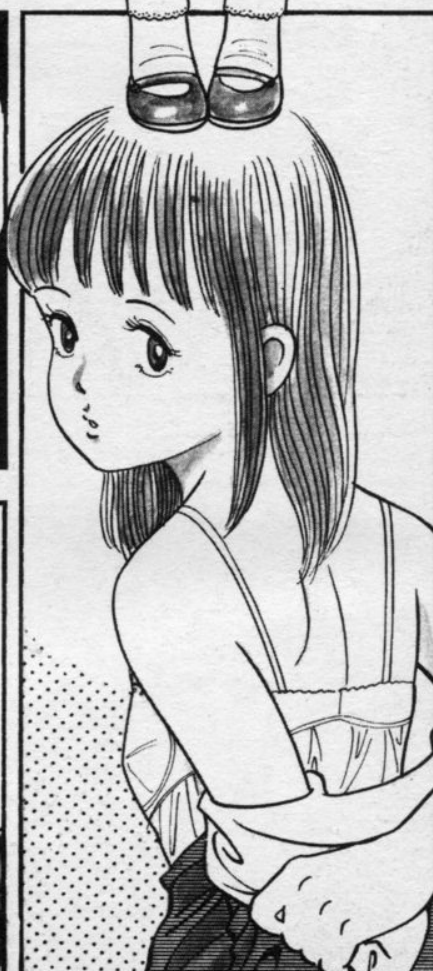

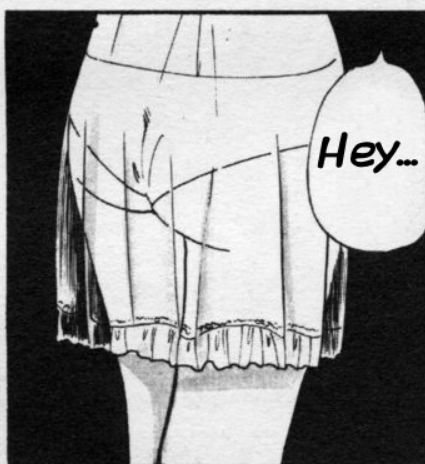

I want to see more of Mr. Nakajima's manga! In the second last page those cute Yukai's panties, I just want them.
CUTE!! I can't put in in the words.
<Beautiful >> 16-years>

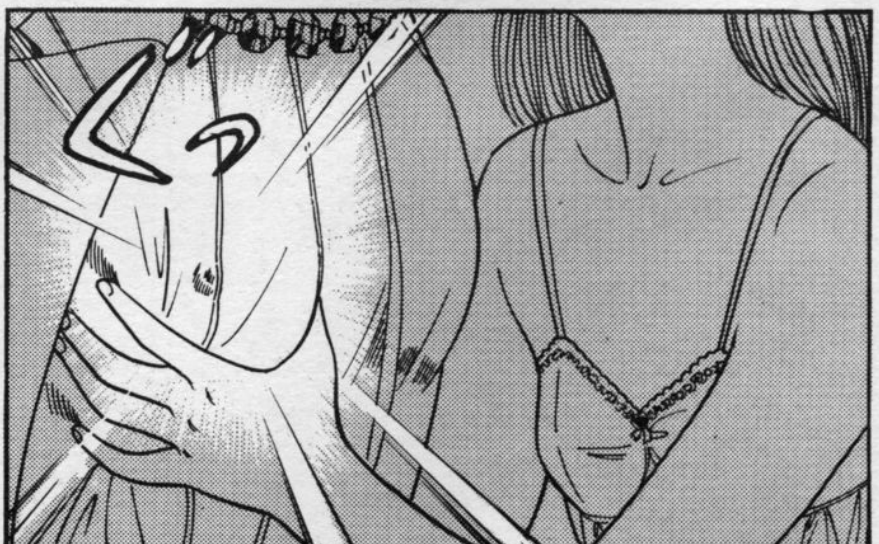

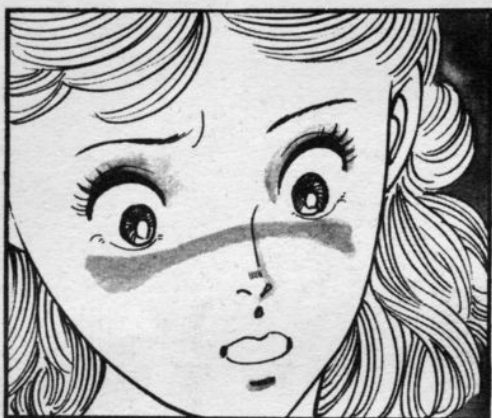

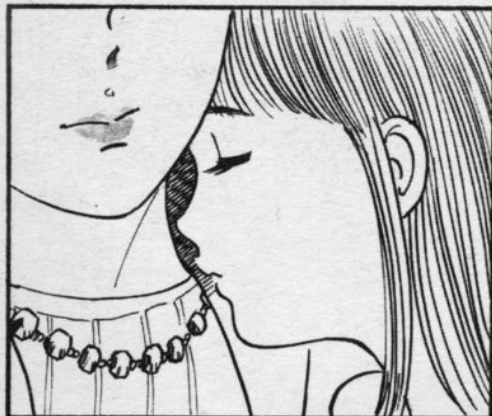

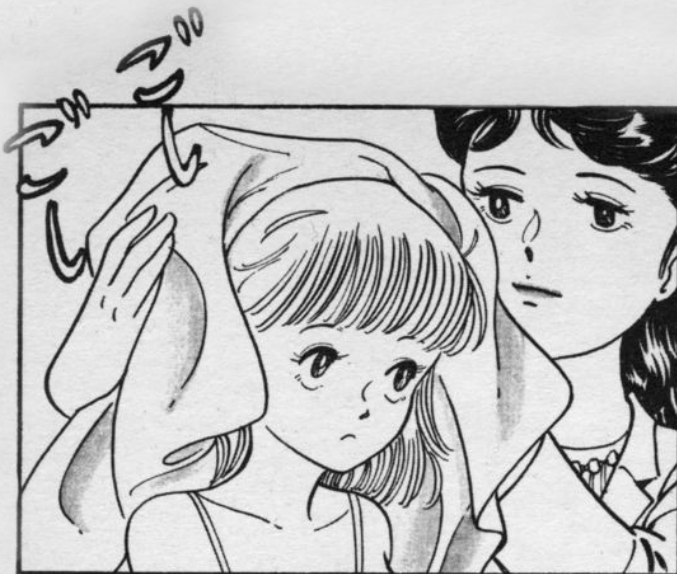

Yay Yay people!

Amazing cover and pretty girl pictures: 螺旋回廊
My throat hurts from laughing: ミルク キャンディー
28th is the pinnacle of my youth, then I can enter

Yay Yay People!

I showed LP-magazine in the class to my peers and the teacher noticed it.
He said why won't you show me more. I remember his name.
<Keiichi Honma 17-years>

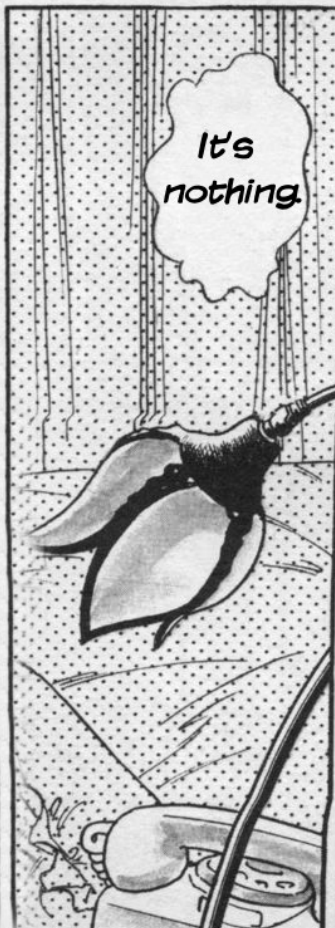

It's alright.
I won't
get mad
about it.

Eh, what are
you doing?
I'm bit
confused.

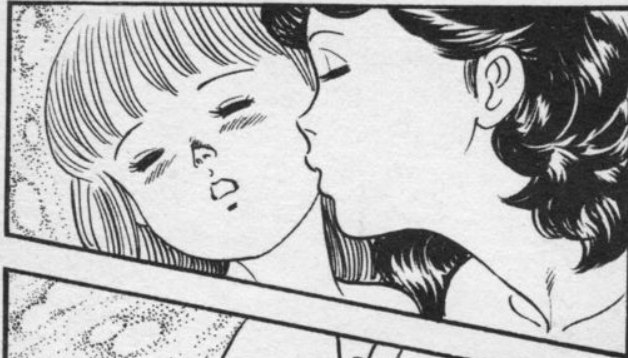

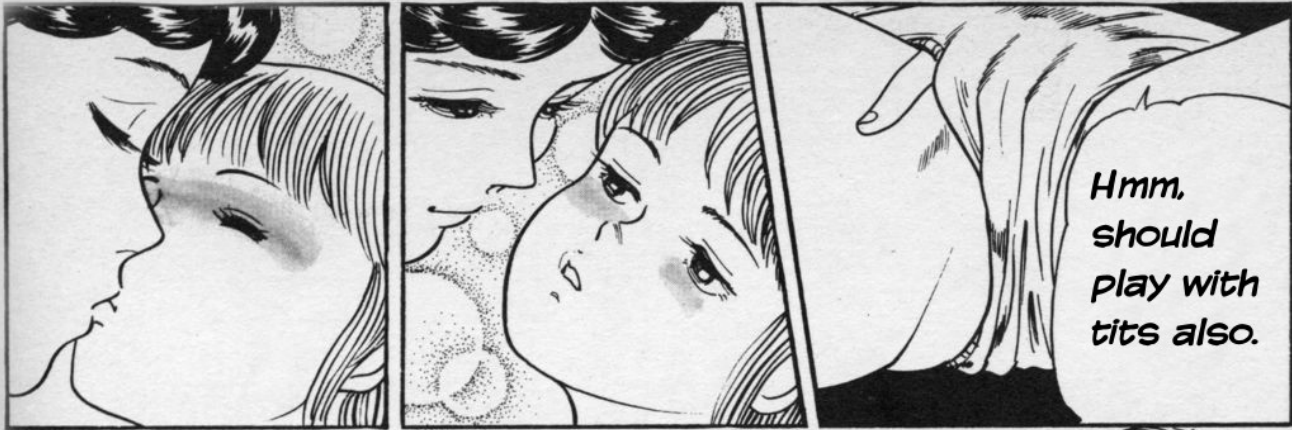

What
would
you like
do then?

It's
nothing.

There was a sports day at kindergarten yesterday, too bad I didn't call my friend.
