ROYAL CHAIN'S

The human kingdom was unbeatable. After subjugating, eradicating or seducing into alliance all other races with their never ending appetite for progress and land, men enjoyed peace and glory for countless years. Sages claimed it was the promised time, and with the years people became weak and fat from the spoils of a safe and easy life.

But times changed.

Like a dark cloud the barbarian race of the half-giants arrived from parts unknown and again the human kingdom faced constant war. Thousands perished under the threat of these man-beasts with their daemonic power and aggression. Now, after a decade, no more just in hopeless whispers it is said that the age of mankind might be coming to an end.

Seeking to safeguard his bloodline, the desperate king sent Princess Astalla with a caravan to the hidden elven fortresses, honoring an old treaty between those kingdoms. But, perhaps by work of some traitorous tongue in his own court, the caravan was intercepted.

And the princess was bought in shackles to the attention of the the leader of the entire half-giant race. Warlord Uldras.
