Surrounding her are several other women in various states of undress, reacting with surprise and excitement. On the left, two women are visible; one is partially obscured, while the other looks up at the central figure with wide eyes and an open mouth. In the upper right, another woman peeks over a wooden railing. In the lower right, a woman is lying down, looking up at the central figure with a surprised expression, while another woman sits next to her, also looking on.

The background features traditional Japanese architectural elements, including wooden railings and sliding doors (shoji). The overall atmosphere is one of anticipation and surprise.
