This is sudden, but until the last time, I was so fat that I would fall to my knees after running only 500m.

Hello again. I was going to buy a long sleeved Heattech shirt, but they only had short sleeved ones. Onizuka here.

You might think that I'll just get fatter if I do that, and you would be correct, but as a result of living like that for three months, running has become a habit for me.

Since it was hard to keep going like that, I decided to try something different. To start of with, in order to make running a habit, I decided I could drink a beer everyday I ran, regardless of the distance.

For the time being, I'll do my best everyday until I can wear my 42cm pants.

I've gotten just a bit thinner than before.

Because I got used to running, my drinking frequency has returned to normal.

I think I'll drive there while listening to something like Infected Mushrooms, The Field, M4Sonic and The Killimanjaro Darkjazz Ensemble as well as songs from Love Live and Cinderella Girls.

Well, but if I finish drawing this thing today, I'll go out drinking alone.

Now then, I hope we meet again somewhere!
