■ Afterword

To those seeing my work for the first time, nice to meet you. To the rest of you, long time no see. Since the start of this year, I've replaced my chair twice. But as my back hurts all the same, I've gotten myself a new desk recently. It's a so-called standing desk that lets me work while standing up. I worked standing up while drawing the illustrations for this book, and I do it even as I enter the text for this afterword. I've always been working while sitting down until now, so suddenly starting to work while standing up is quite tiring. If I don't take breaks frequently, my back starts to hurt too. (;_;) Even so, I'm happy to be able to keep drawing. Until recently, my back pain was so bad just looking at a chair filled me with dread. I had a phobia of chairs (;_;) Last year was a year that taught me a painful lesson about the importance of exercise and maintaining the health of my body. Although it's going slowly, I've resumed working on Omujo, so please check it out online. I wish you a good new year.
