Basically write it like Steve Irwin talks.

If you write shit like how it sounds in the accent, that is strine.

Strine

It's a term coined in the 60's that means the OZ accent.

Did I fuck ya so hard ya started talking strine?

"I only say this because some Aussie will say, 'This isn't how we talk.' Like last time.

There's lots of regional slang, old stuff, and various accents in one in this. (And a touch kiwi)

If you're an Aussie that doesn't know this, travel your country and read CJ Dennis, ya uncultured cunt.

Afterword:

Greetings, I'm MUK. This is my first time publishing a doujinshi. This is also my first time fully colouring a manga, I got to experience what an incredible job this is in the process. These professional artists actually made it to the weekly or monthly magazines... I always wanted to be a mangaka since I was a kid, and now that's just a forgotten dream, dissipating with the ash of my work as I finished my progress... Just kidding. Speaking of which, working on this was a great pleasure, I wonder if I should do more of these in the future. I wanted to draw a "tiny" and "evil" girl this time around, thus this doujinshi was made. Lastly, thank you so much for buying my book.
