Afterword

When you pick up a stray cat, and they suddenly vanish one day, you can't help but feel heartbroken, can you? I mean, they're not YOUR cat but it sometimes feels impossible to not get attached, doesn't it? That's the kind of feeling that drove me to writing this story.

Humans are emotional beings, and especially in Japan we tend to attribute human features to things we get attached to, making our feelings for them ever stronger. In the case of a cute cat it might evolve into love, or in the case of a cute little girl, why not even lust?

I wonder, did this man ever see Moka-chan again? I'm afraid that is a question not even I can answer.

Coming to Comiket and getting once again lost in this neverending sea of people... I can't help but wonder how many runaways there might be out there... moving from home to home, always in search of a new owner.

Ah, CATS,
I'm talking about CATS!
What did you think I was talking about?
