

I didn't expect my small frame and androgynous looks would be my undoing.

One day, I was called by the doctor to become a test subject for the artificial genitals.

And I was made to go through various experiments as a "girl".

A couple days after the surgery, the usual thing was nowhere to be found...

Our research was conducted on a daily basis, in regards to the functionality of the female genitals, contraction of the vagina, whether it can pleasure male genitals or not, etc.

The pleasure came rushing in every time I experienced an orgasm, and I started to feel the joy of being a woman.

Daily sex with the doctor and the hormones that were released from it were causing my body and mind to become more feminine.

It's been a couple days since my body was changed to that of a woman... I'm starting to get used to this body.

I'm really looking forward to... the result of our experiments...

I got pregnant with the doctor's baby, and we're approaching the final stage of the experiment. My stomach is getting larger by the day, and I'll be going through the birthing experience for the first time.
