

③ All of their weapons being used against the invader. Like a bomb able to destroy a planet or a laser that could vaporize a meteorite, among others. However, it looked like every weapon they attacked with was ineffective against the invader.
A huge crack appeared right in front of the planet. Space battleships attempted to infiltrate the hole big enough to easily swallow the planet whole with room to spare and disappeared inside.
After they noticed their attacks were ineffective against the surface, they risked an attack from within in the hopes it would work.

④ A large number of space battleships launched from the planet in order to intercept and eliminate an approaching threat. The entire sky was covered by something similar to a pink wall, which was the invader from outer space. The highly developed humans able to travel in space had gathered their technology to continuously bombard the invader.

⑤ The entire fleet never returned, possibly all crushed within that crack. Even with the multiple casualties, the attack from the human planet continued. Since the beginning of history prior to this space war, mankind was always in overwhelmingly disadvantageous situations. Billions of humans lived and built their civilization on this blue planet, until an invader drifted by and casted his shadow over them. Their sphere had a diameter of about 12,000 kilometers, but it was only the size of a grain of rice compared to the invader. The humans who intended to rule space, despised once again in front of that hegemon. A super-gigantic body drifting from outer space which couldn't be dealt with by the attacks from any of their weapons. Even though they hated it, they realized that they globe with the mold-like development of their civilization seemed to be headed on a crash course against that pink surface.

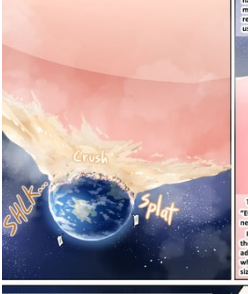

⑥ They desperately tried to attack the space monster looking down at them. He was just floating out in space, but suddenly felt some itching around his crotch and found the tiny civilization wandering right in front of his glans.

He looked surprised to see the planet with living things coming closer to his penis and appearing to attack it. The tiny grain headed toward the skin floated close by the exposed glans. He found it pleasant to think about the billions of microbes fearing his gigantic penis and attacking it with everything they had.
This whole war could abruptly end with just a twitch of his dick! The micro-sized planet could be nothing more than a stain on his glans in an instant and any vestiges of those humans would all disappear. Although he could crush the planet at any time, he decided to kill time by observing their resistance instead.

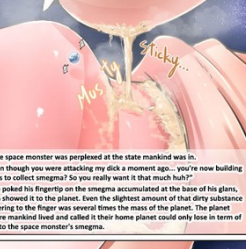

⑦ "Ah, was it destroyed...? Maybe it was too much..."
The space monster rolled the planet in the smagma the humans really wanted. By now, it was more the other way around with the planet stuck to it instead, the overwhelming mass of his smagma engulfing the planet. Continents and seas, even a lot of the people's cities and countries were crushed before sinking into the space monster's sticky and smelly smagma.

⑧ Going past the head, the drifting planet was now over the base of the glans. Mankind began to depend on the surface of the space monster's glans to start setting up front bases for supplies and development of weapons. Ironically, the resources available were infinite. The humans were able to produce anything from food to weapons with the smagma accumulated at the base of the space monster's glans as a raw material.

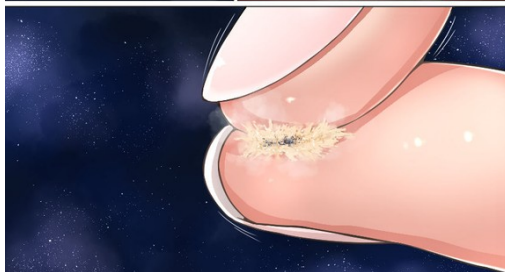

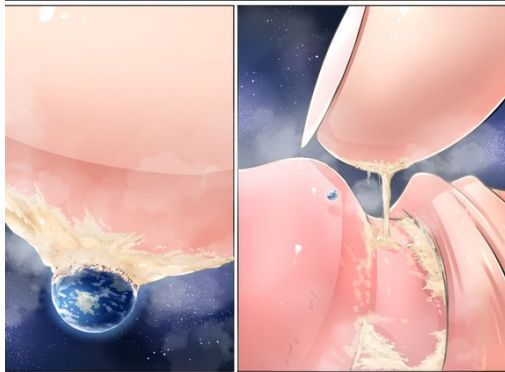

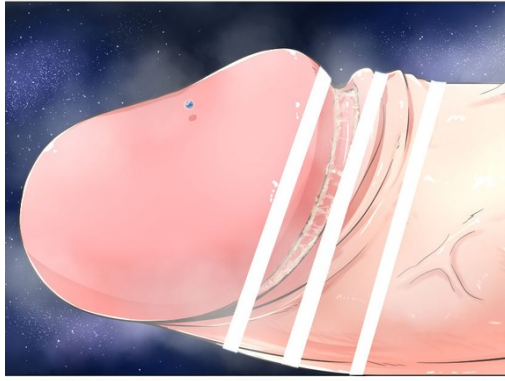

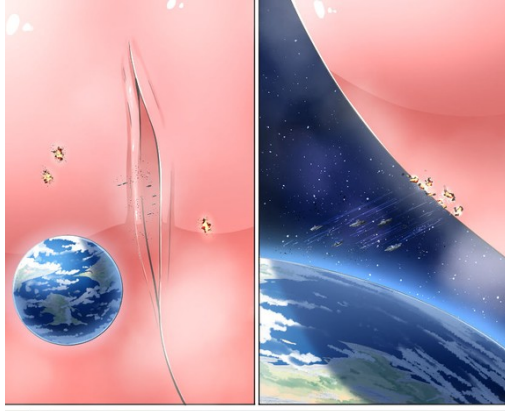

It was the first time in mankind's history they were blessed with this many resources at hand. A situation far different than limited resources struggle they had on the planet. The different countries quickly launched toward the space monster's penis to be the first to build mining cities over the smagma to collect resource. Humans will finally be freed from their eternal resource shortages using the smagma stuck on the space monster's penis.

⑨ The humans who built bases and cities on the space monster's glans or at its base watched the final moment of their home planet.
Either of their competitors had been left behind on the planet. Their hometowns and the long history of civilization they built on that beautiful planet was being kneaded and crushed in the smagma within the gigantic space monster's fingers while making indistinct sounds. The continents were breaking apart and smagma poked out as the planet eventually lost its shape.
"Okay, my smagma won. Is the space war over now?"
Once the space monster's finger opened up, the sticky smagma was pulled on both sides in a string. In there was the stained dirt of the planet humans used to live on being shown to the cities built on his dick.

On the day mankind lost the space war, they became breeding microbes consuming the smagma all over the space monster's glans. With the infinite smagma and a place on his glans hundreds of times wider than the planet they used to live on, mankind flourished more than ever.
The space monster also lost interest in the miserable propagating micro-sized life forms relying on the smagma found on the surface of his dick as he continued wandering around once again in the universe.

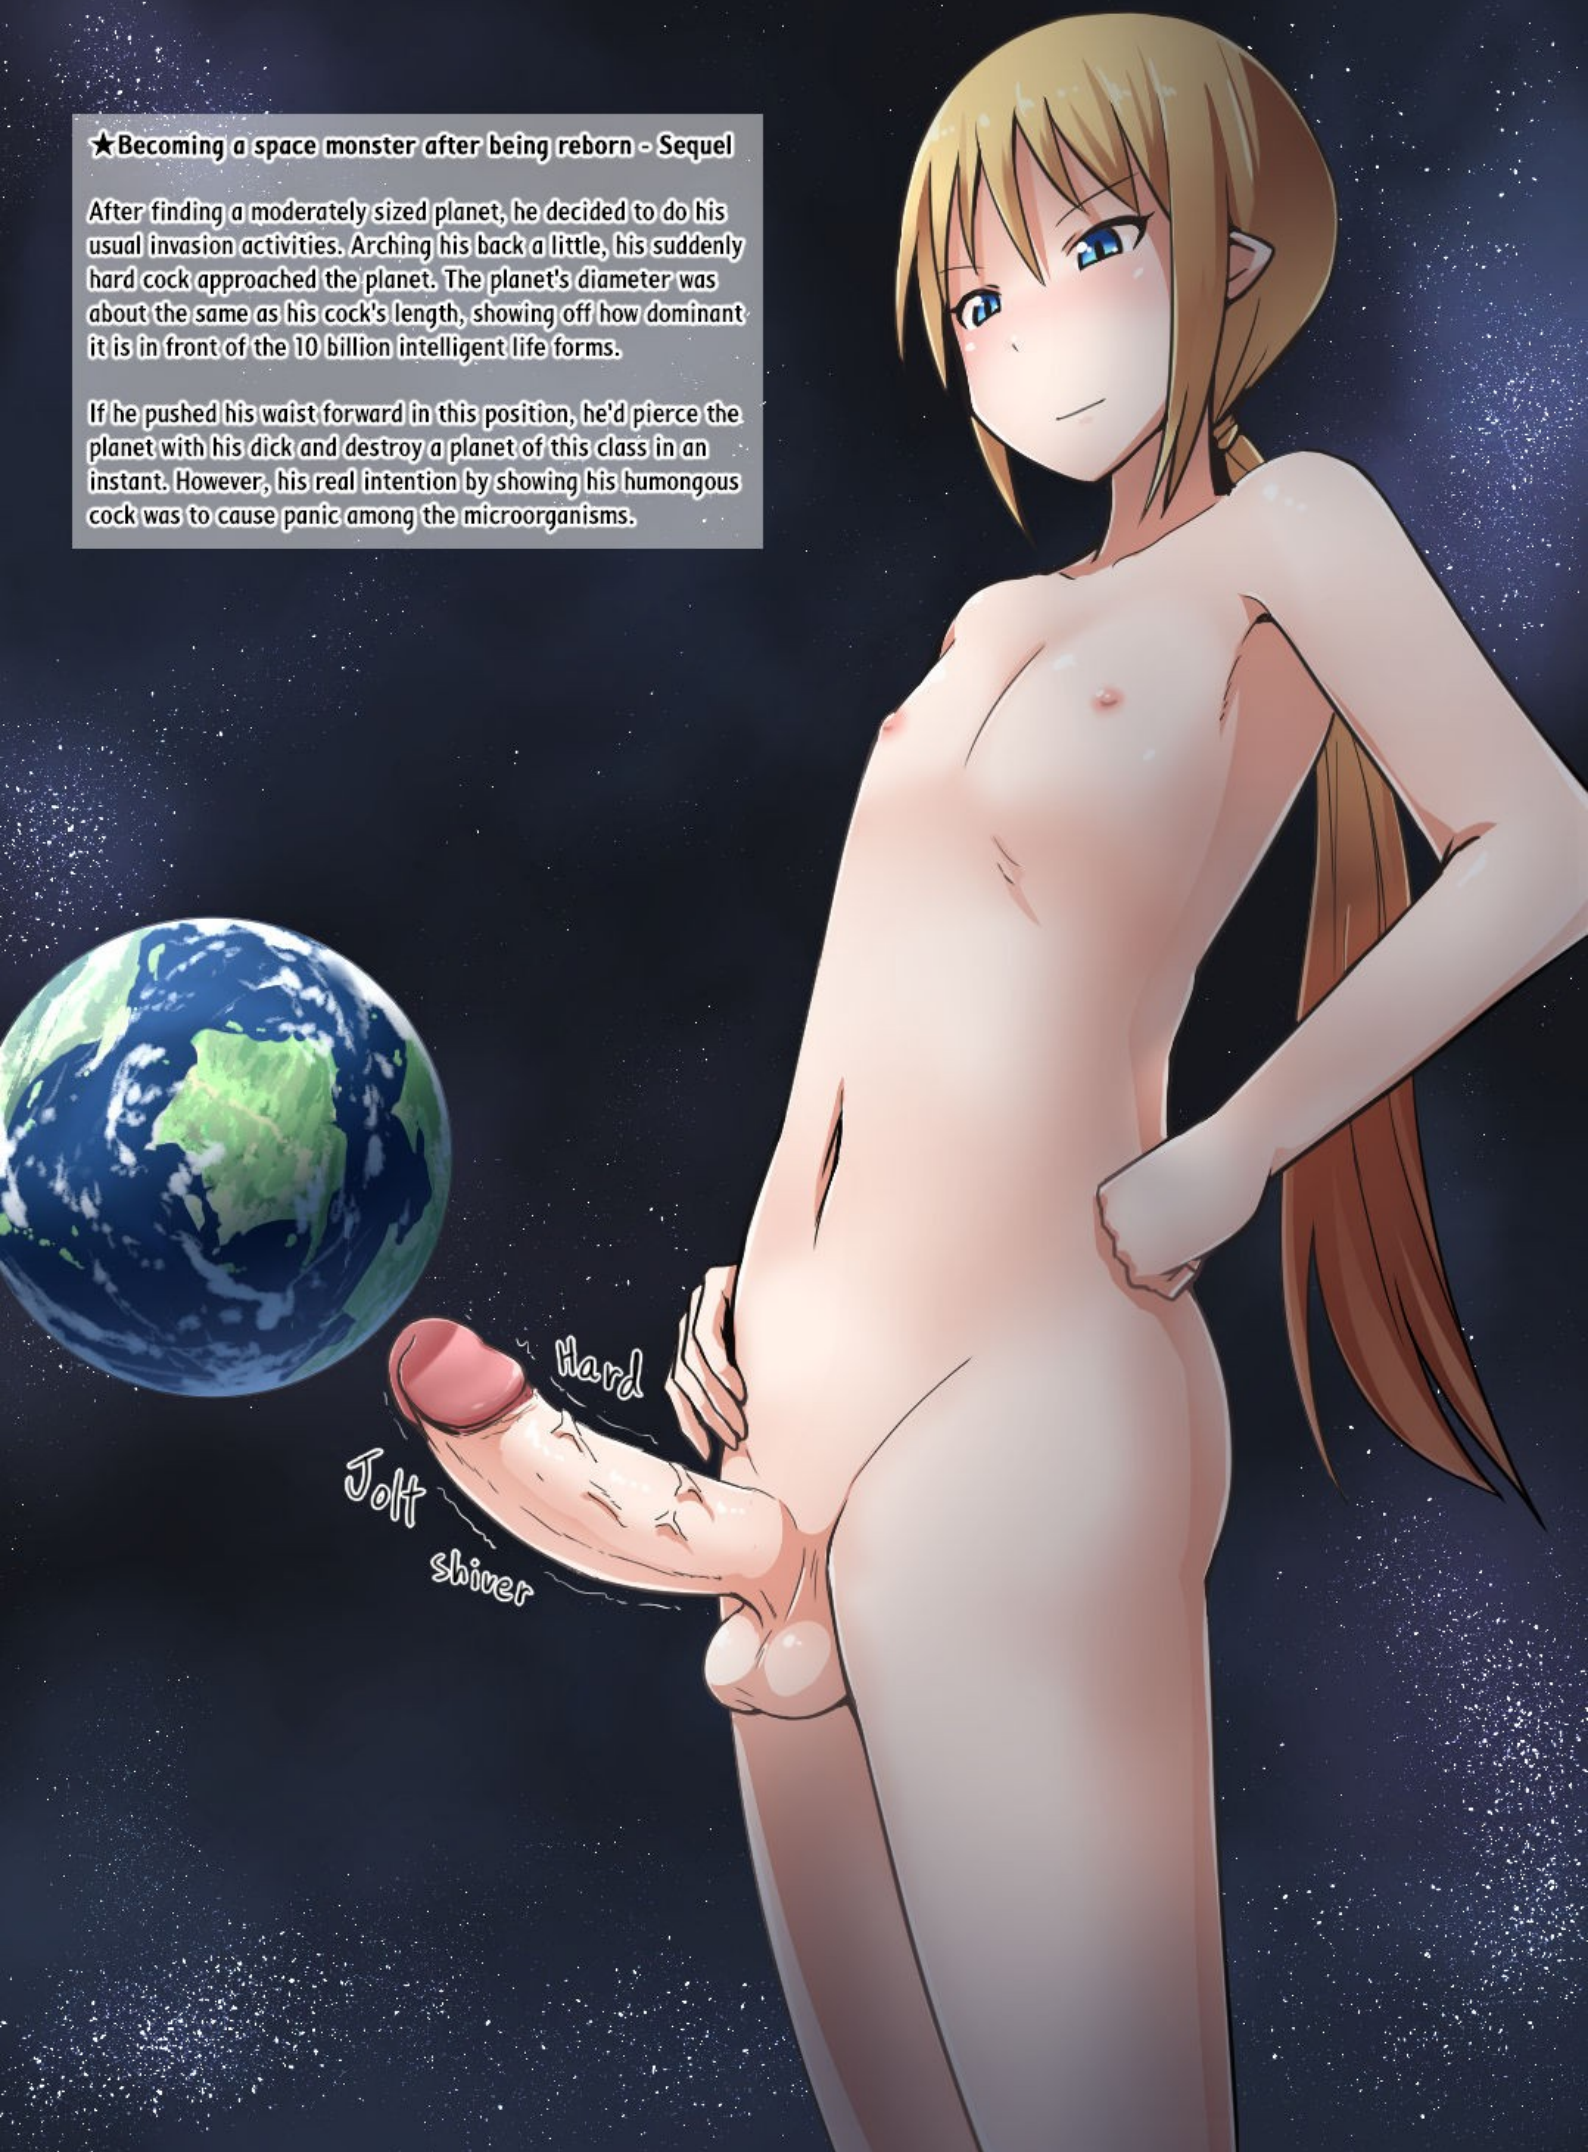

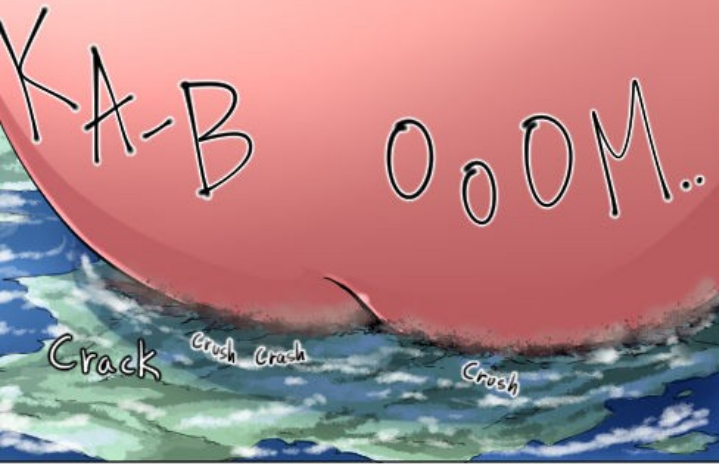

★ Becoming a space monster after being reborn - Sequel

After finding a moderately sized planet, he decided to do his usual invasion activities. Arching his back a little, his suddenly hard cock approached the planet. The planet's diameter was about the same as his cock's length, showing off how dominant it is in front of the 10 billion intelligent life forms.

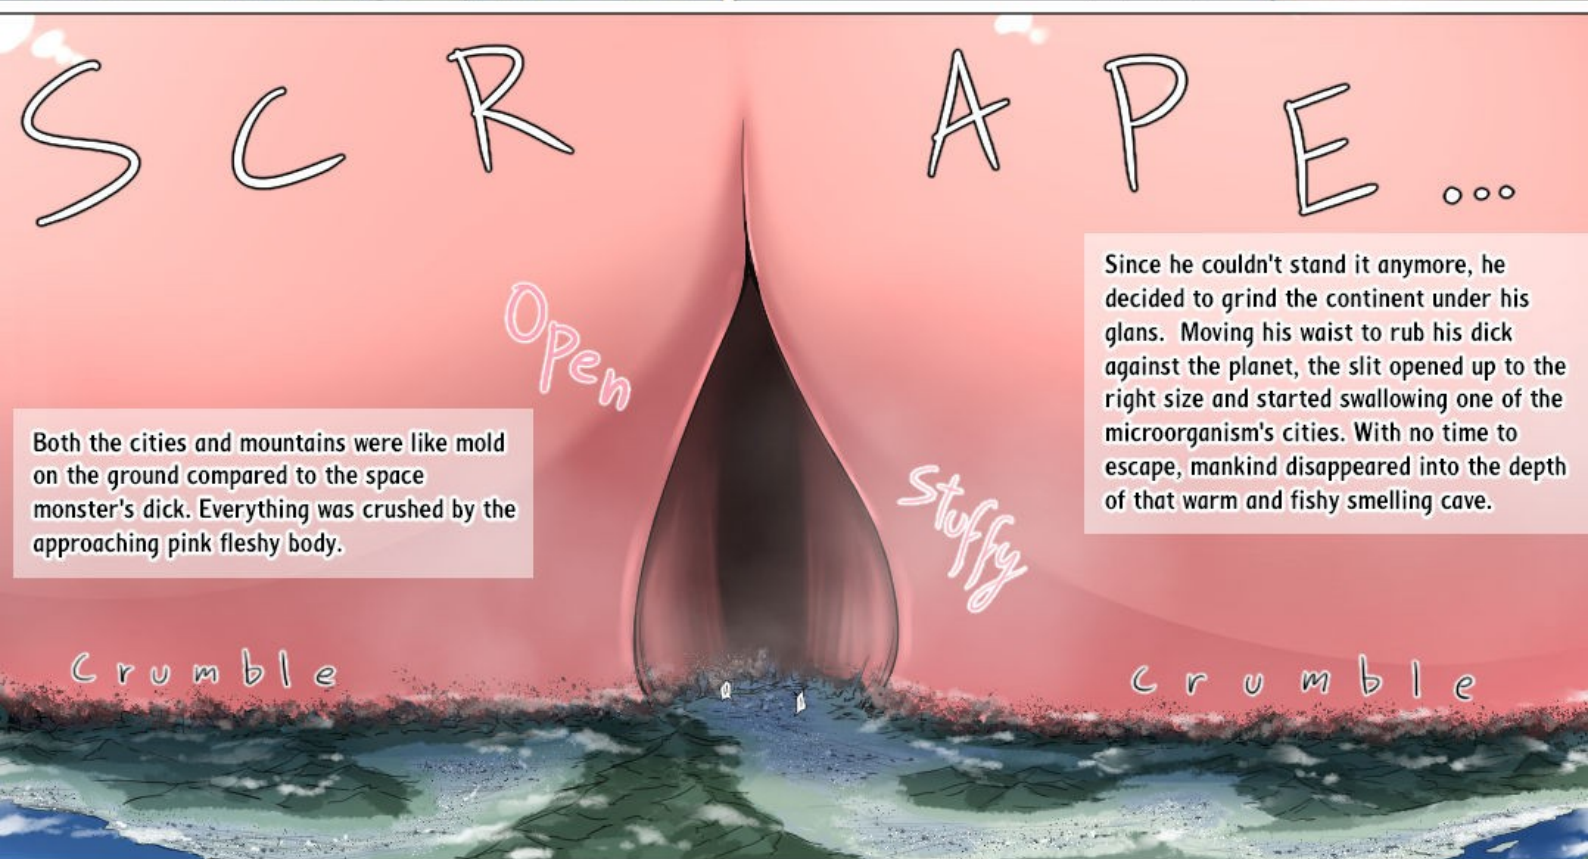

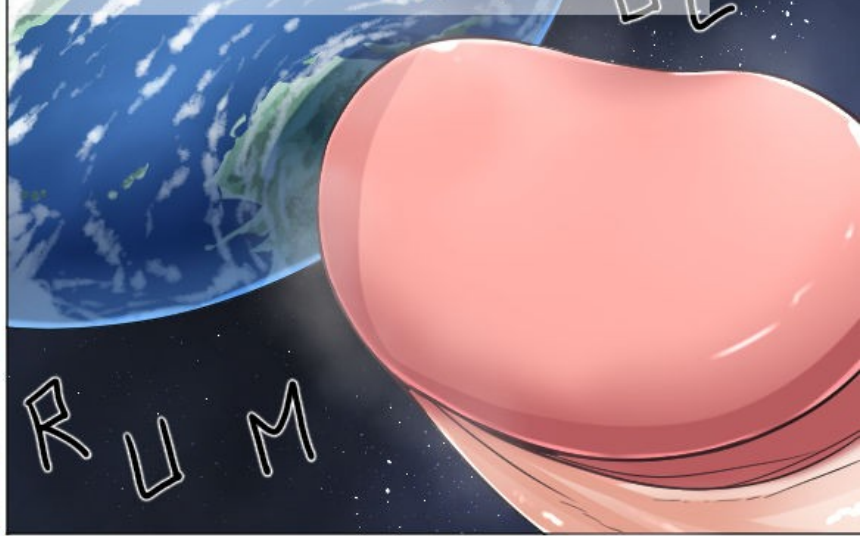

If he pushed his waist forward in this position, he'd pierce the planet with his dick and destroy a planet of this class in an instant. However, his real intention by showing his humongous cock was to cause panic among the microorganisms.

Ah...
He realized he may have crushed a few countries when he felt an itchy sensation at the tip of his glans. His dick got too close to the planet while he was lost in thought. The sensation of crushing and popping many millions of tiny microorganisms and animals under the tip of his dick felt really good.

The size of the giant's glans completely covered a continent in shadow as it approached the planet's surface. Stuffy hot air radiated onto the planet, forcing the microorganisms to breathe it in. The more chaotic the planet became, the more energy flowed into his body. As he was thinking about which continent to crush, his cock was slowly getting closer.

Both the cities and mountains were like mold on the ground compared to the space monster's dick. Everything was crushed by the approaching pink fleshy body.

Since he couldn't stand it anymore, he decided to grind the continent under his glans. Moving his waist to rub his dick against the planet, the slit opened up to the right size and started swallowing one of the microorganism's cities. With no time to escape, mankind disappeared into the depth of that warm and fishy smelling cave.

L O O M ...

While choosing another continent as his next prey, he held his dick over the planet again. The atmosphere was already completely filled with the space monster's dick's smell. The planet's entire atmosphere had been tainted by his scent.

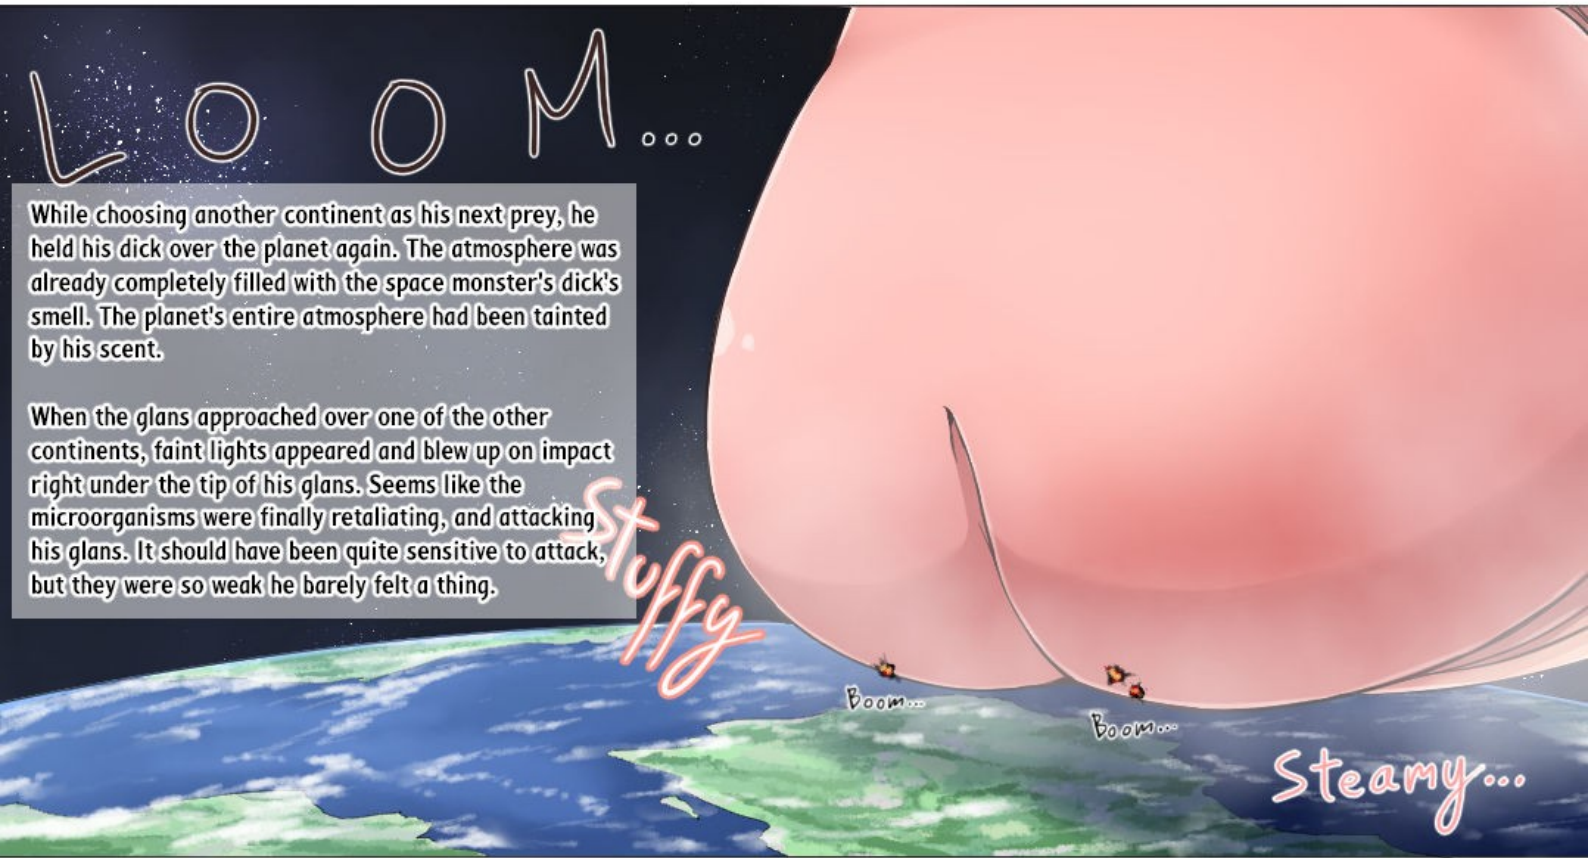

When the glans approached over one of the other continents, faint lights appeared and blew up on impact right under the tip of his glans. Seems like the microorganisms were finally retaliating, and attacking his glans. It should have been quite sensitive to attack, but they were so weak he barely felt a thing.

Stuffy

Boom...

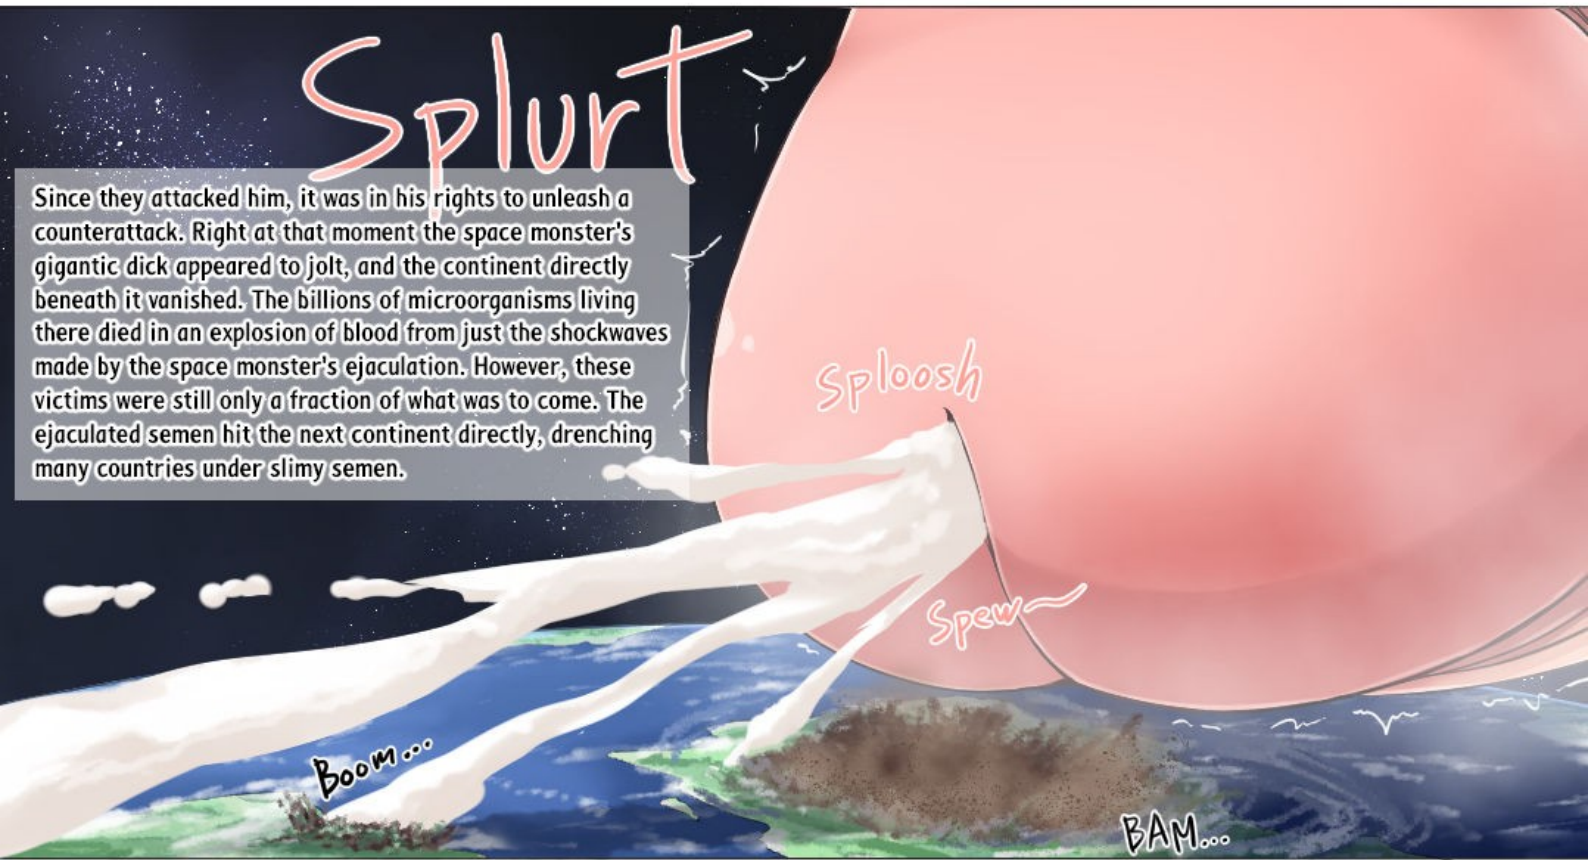

Boom...

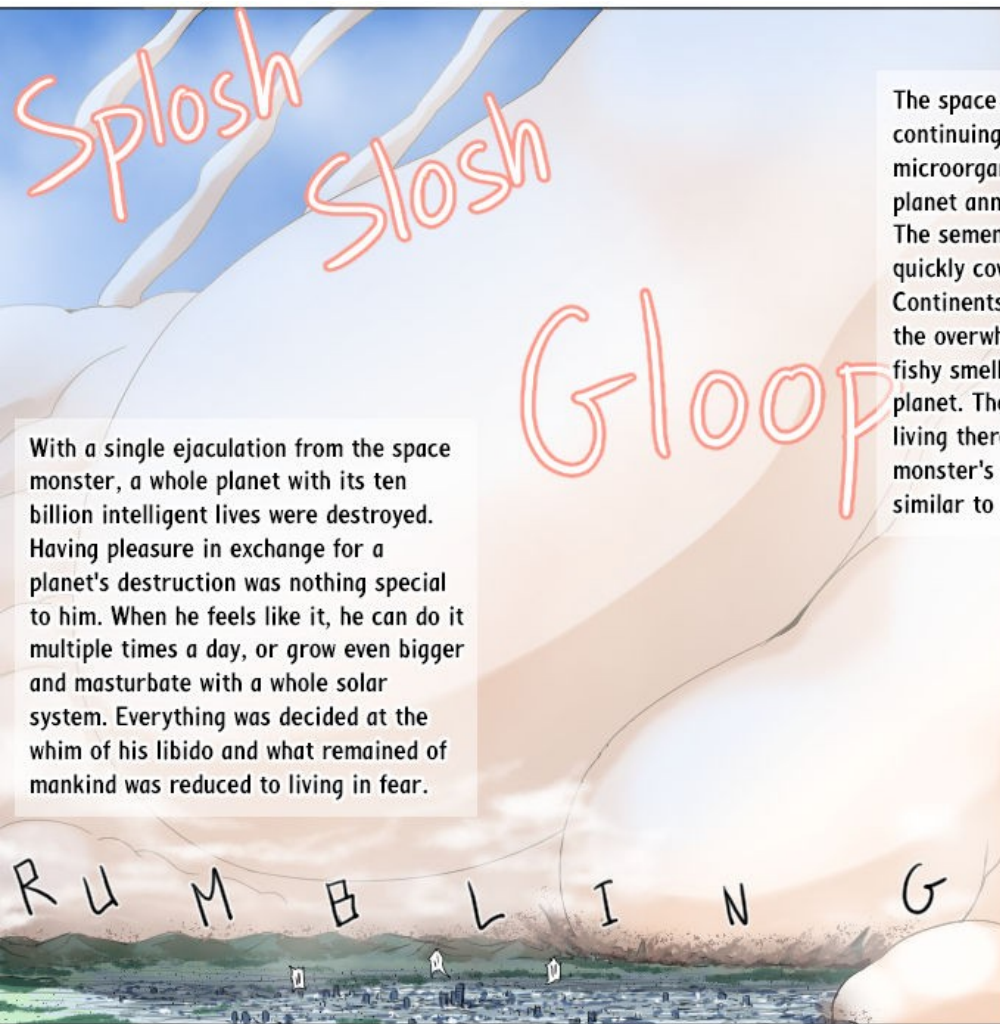

Steamy...

Splurt

Since they attacked him, it was in his rights to unleash a counterattack. Right at that moment the space monster's gigantic dick appeared to jolt, and the continent directly beneath it vanished. The billions of microorganisms living there died in an explosion of blood from just the shockwaves made by the space monster's ejaculation. However, these victims were still only a fraction of what was to come. The ejaculated semen hit the next continent directly, drenching many countries under slimy semen.

With a single ejaculation from the space monster, a whole planet with its ten billion intelligent lives were destroyed. Having pleasure in exchange for a planet's destruction was nothing special to him. When he feels like it, he can do it multiple times a day, or grow even bigger and masturbate with a whole solar system. Everything was decided at the whim of his libido and what remained of mankind was reduced to living in fear.

The space monster's ejaculation was still continuing as he looked down at the microorganisms who had pulled the planet annihilation trigger themselves. The semen spewed by the pulsating cock quickly covered the planet in no time. Continents and seas were crushed under the overwhelming mass of the sticky and fishy smelling body fluid, overrunning the planet. The people and everything else living there were crushed by the space monster's semen, ended by something similar to a microbial treatment.

