Afterword & Characters

Hello everyone, this is Goya.

I haven't published a doujin nor written an afterword in quite a while.

This time I wrote a story in the Omegaverse. This genre is generally directed to a female audience, but I think it's a really interesting setting so I decided to try my hands at a story for male audiences.

(the following will be easier to understand if you look up the basic concepts of Omegaverse first)

"The world"

The year is at least 5000AD... It's way into the future.

The story takes place in a huge space vessel containing 4 living quarters, each housing 10 million people. The goal of this spaceship is to find a new planet that humanity can colonize.

The ship is equipped with perfect food production capabilities, so no one on board will ever be at risk of starving.

Each and every function of the ship is also fully mechanized and automated so there is no need for actual work.

The only real problem everyone faces everyday is boredom.

"Characters"

Ibrida (Alpha, female)

She's the female main character. Alphas are perfect creatures born from splicing human DNA with that of animals. They are both stronger and more intelligent than regular humans, granting them key management roles across the ship.

Ibrida is no exception: she's the secretary of the manager of the 2nd Living Quarter, who incidentally is also her older brother.

Alpha females, on top of female genitalia, also have testicles inside their abdomens. Their clitoris can swell like a penis, allowing them to ejaculate from the tip.

She's grown very fond of Atoria lately.

Atoria (Omega, male)

An Omega adopted by Ibrida. Omegas are creatures bioengineered to be kept as pets by other humans, creatures who find joy in satisfying their owners. Omega males don't have testicles: they can still ejaculate, but the liquid will contain no sperm. They have, on the other hand, a womb-like organ inside their rectum: ejaculating inside an Omega male can get him pregnant.

Anato (Alpha, male)

He's Ibrida's older brother and the manager of the 2nd Living Quarter of the Noah.

While the title is officially "manager", it's not actually a real job as much as countless meetings with other Alphas (small talk and gossip, in Anato's opinion.)

He's been spending a lot of times with normal humans (Betas) lately, creating his own female harem.

Don't get me talking writing Sci-Fi or I could go on forever... Let's stop here.

I have a few more stories in mind with these characters so I think I'll write a sequel sometime in the future.

I'd really like to make girl faces a little more animal-like next time.
Now that I'm finally working with a Sci-fi setting I wanna really go all out!

Welp... Summer is much closer than it seems, maybe too close... But I have a feeling we'll see each other then.
