Thanks for 1st anniversary

This is an extra for the original manga "An Elder Sister".

This time around I tried throwing together some short stories of Chiyo-nee in different outfits, something I don't draw in the main doujin version or the serialized version.

It's a bit of an evil creation for those that haven't read the main story, but... The serialized version is being fully published via Twitter, so if you'd like to then by all means take this chance to go have a read.

One year of An Elder Sister!

Back

Her horns are not parallel to one another but rather incline toward the center. Their inclination toward the back ends within the range of her head. This shows three angles.

The parts around and below Chiyo's chest change in accordance to her mood (as well to the convenience of the scene). The more eyeballs there are, the further her state of being is from that of a person.

Her two-colored tufts flicker like a flame. As it does not have any actual substance, it does not interfere with her hair or other parts. The tufts at her waist have taken the shape of both a ribbon and shorts before.

There is no set number to the amount of tentacles at the tips of her hair. The tips of her hair emit a faint blue glow. She can change their shape and material property at will. When she transforms, her clothes are also produced by her hair.

Her legs and arms are covered by short beast hair.

She can lengthen and alter the firmness of her fingertips (fingernails) at will. When she takes the form of a human, her nails are painted red.

Side

Her hooves are split at the front, and when viewed from the side they have a silhouette similar to that of heels. The placement of her heel is a bit unique.

Her bangs are trimmed but only slightly, so they give off a rather bunched-up feel. Her side locks are from hair she let spill from the top. The hair to her sides is firmly hooked by her ears, and because of the weight she generally lets the hair toward the back flow straight down.

Her outfit is often a sleeveless one-piece.

In the first volume of the doujin version, as well as the First Night of the serialized version, she wears a thin, high-waist, layered, light blue denim one-piece.

Aside from that:

A sleeveless polo shirt. (Third Night)

A white, off-shoulder one-piece. (Fourth Night)

Jeans (Doujin volume 2), A cotton blouse, etc.

Her clothes change depending on the scene, but generally she wears things of a simple, mature design.

For her height, as she doesn't have hooves, she's a bit shorter than she is when she's in demon form. The original drawing for her settings had her as "168 centimeters (5'6"), hooves included", but as I drew her that number became larger and larger. As of now, I'd say she is around 172 centimeters (5'7") in human form and 180 centimeters (6') in demon form.

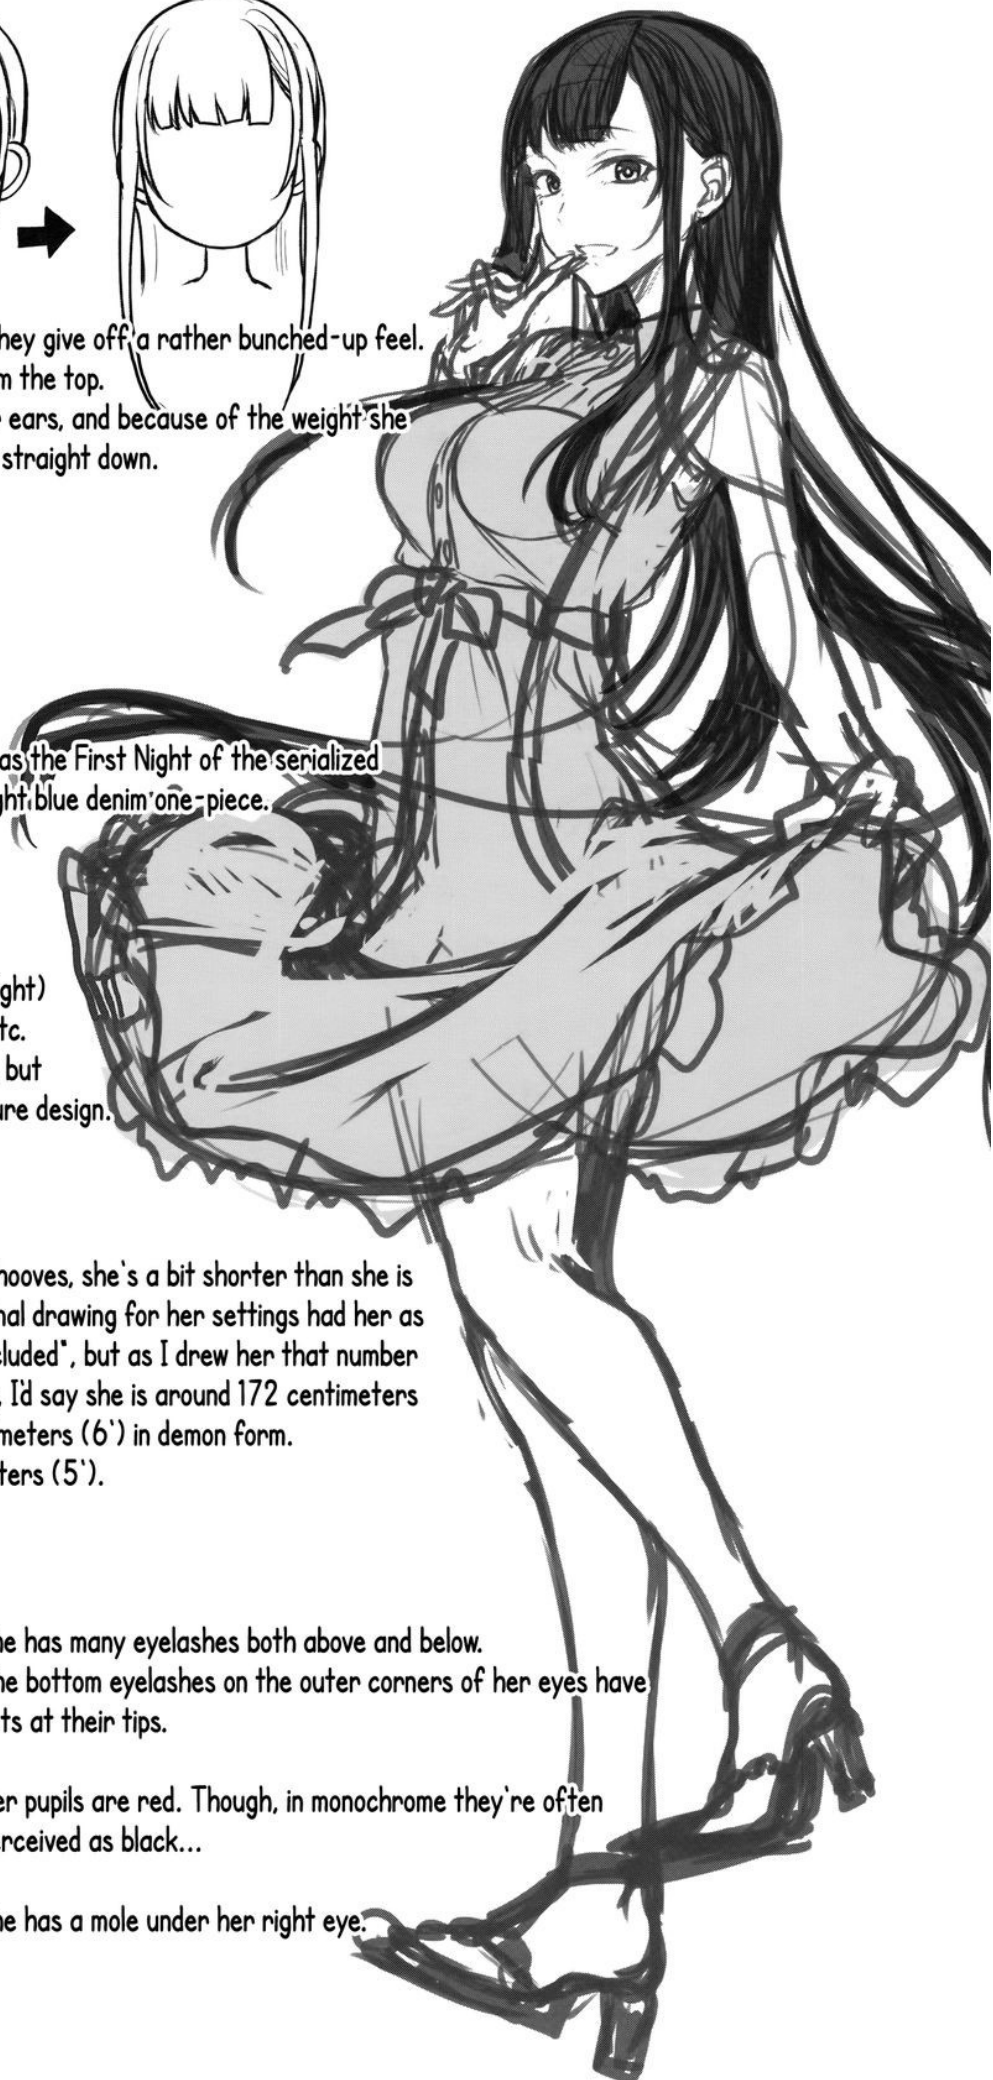

By the way, Yuu-kun is 152 centimeters (5').

She has many eyelashes both above and below. The bottom eyelashes on the outer corners of her eyes have dots at their tips.

Her pupils are red. Though, in monochrome they're often perceived as black...

She has a mole under her right eye.

Hey,
Yuukun...

One year anniversary of An Elder Sister!
Congratulations!! In the serialized version some kind of ominous flag was raised for their beach trip... so this is more of an "if" thing, namely if they're able to fool around in peace...!

I'm looking forward to more of the greatest Onee-chan ever; that mix of innocence and demonic perversion!

It's been exactly one year since the release of the very first volume of "An Elder Sister". Though I say a year, that's really only two comikets, but during that one year I've drawn sequels and even had it serialized, so it really feels like a lot has happened.

The only reason I've been able to continue this "Cthulhu Mythos Older Girl and Younger Boy" genre of manga, that can only be said to have been derived from madness, for a combined 8 stories of doujin and serialized versions, is thanks to all of those that let me know their impressions of it, all of those that recommend it to their friends, and all of those that read these stories. Really, thank you all so much...!

As for my schedule from here on... for September-November I'll focus on magazine publications and have a tankoubon for sale by December. I'd like to put out volume four of the doujin version for Winter Comiket, if possible. I want to give it my all so as to not lose any momentum.

Well then, please keep your thoughts on Chiyo-nee and Yuu-kun in the future as well.
