For those who are new to the series, nice to meet you; and for returning readers, welcome back. This is Takanæ Doko, please call me Takanæ Kyourin.

It's the eighth book—! Thank you very much for sticking with us for this long! A-After another two releases, it will enter into the double digits, wowwwww...

About the heavy talk in the last book, basically for a long period after the Summer Comiket my body's condition continued to worsen, and even after many checkups the cause troublingly remained unknown... But... But! Around the end of November, I returned to my work desk once more, and a lot of things happened...! I've completely recovered now!

Health is important above all else, right? (:D) ☞ I definitely want to start getting active in the coming years~

Recently I've been really getting into rice wine and yadom. Rice wine really is versatile for both drinking and ointment! I tried making some at home, but every time the fermentation turned out too strong ><

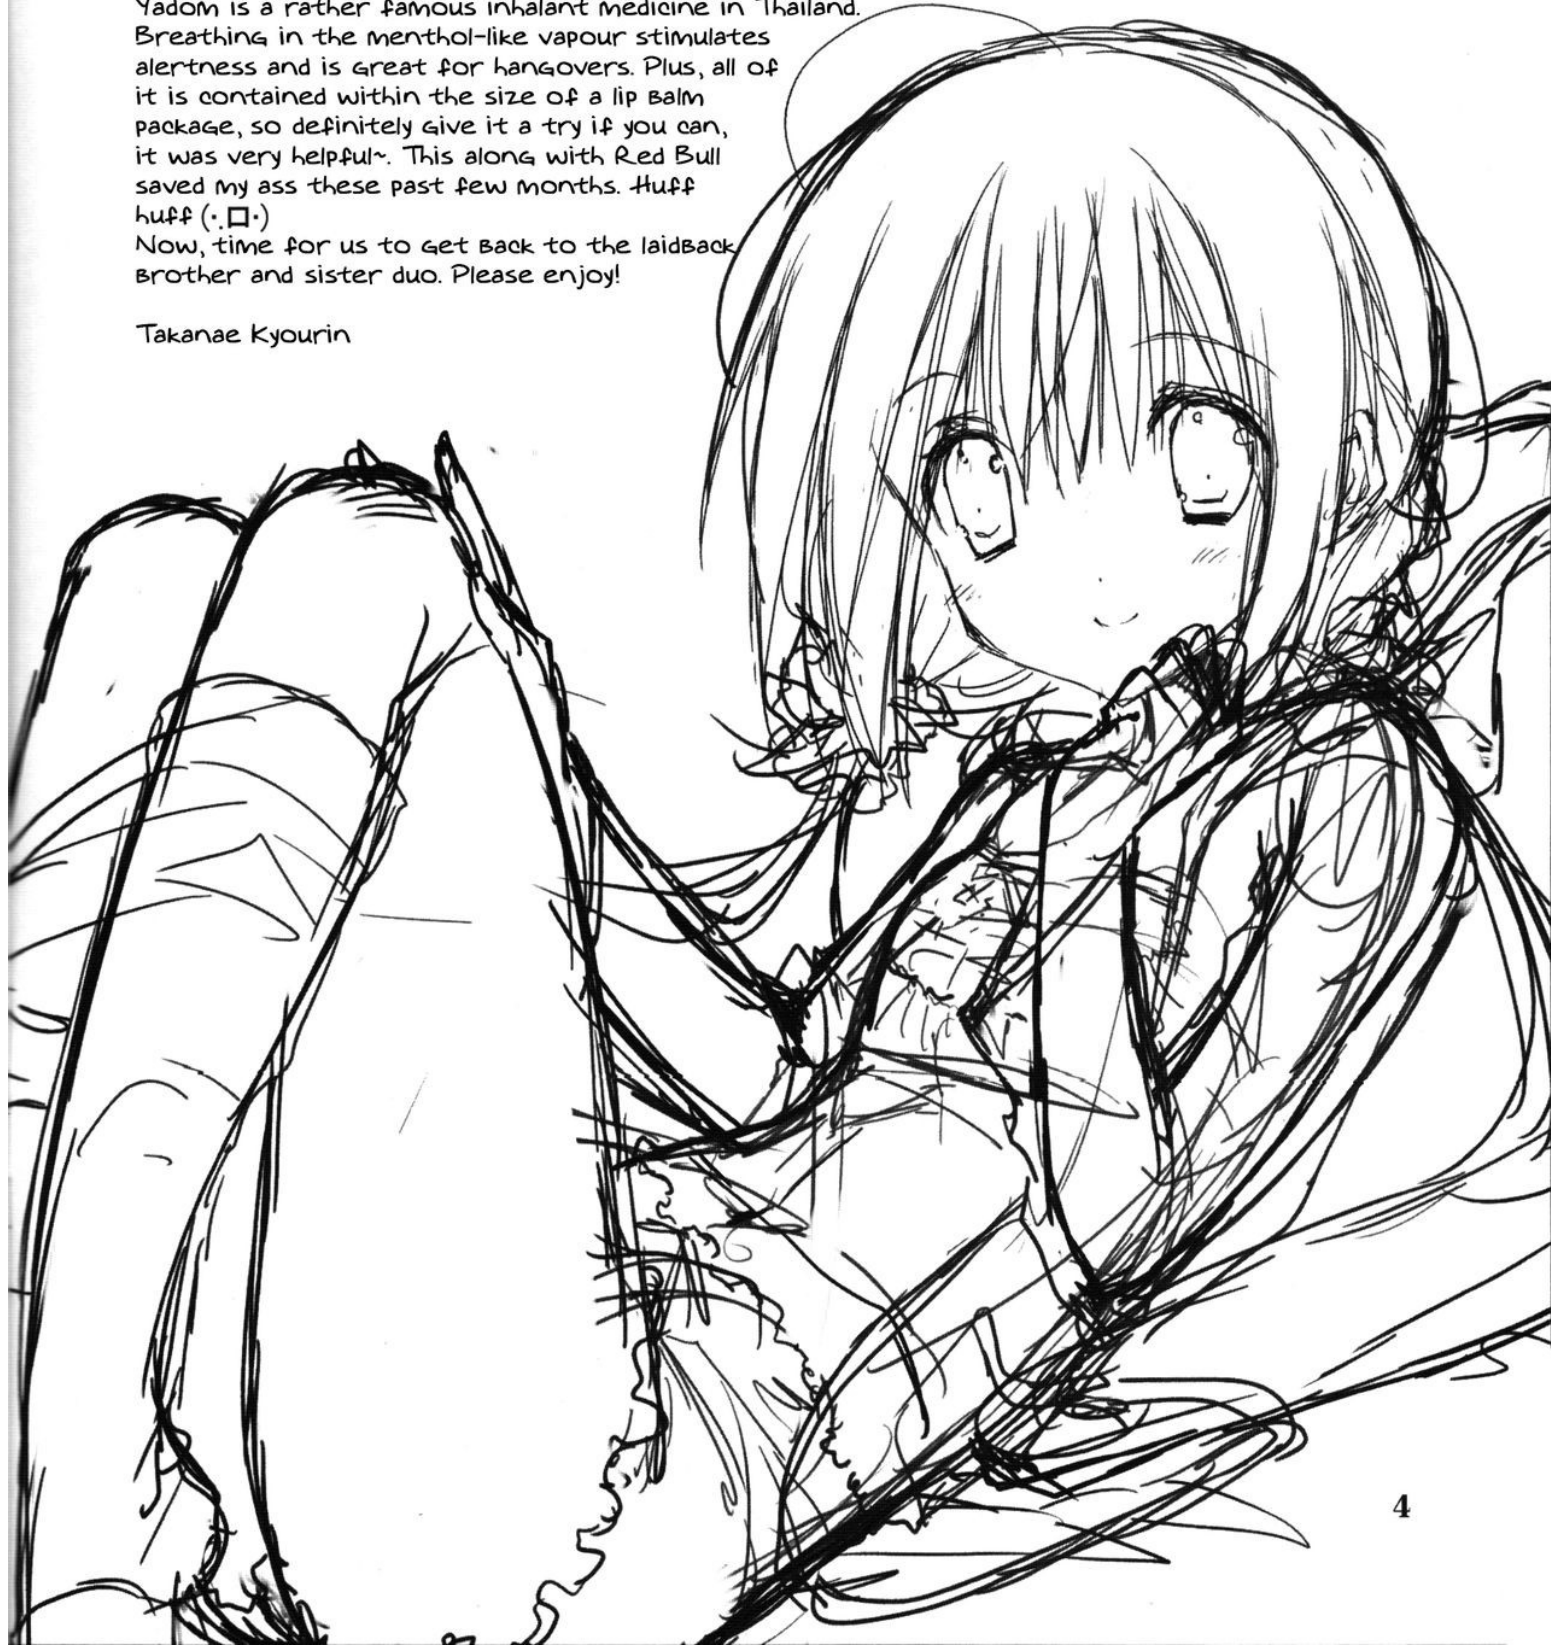

For those ones I used it as a balm instead. Thanks to those of you waiting patiently on Twitter...

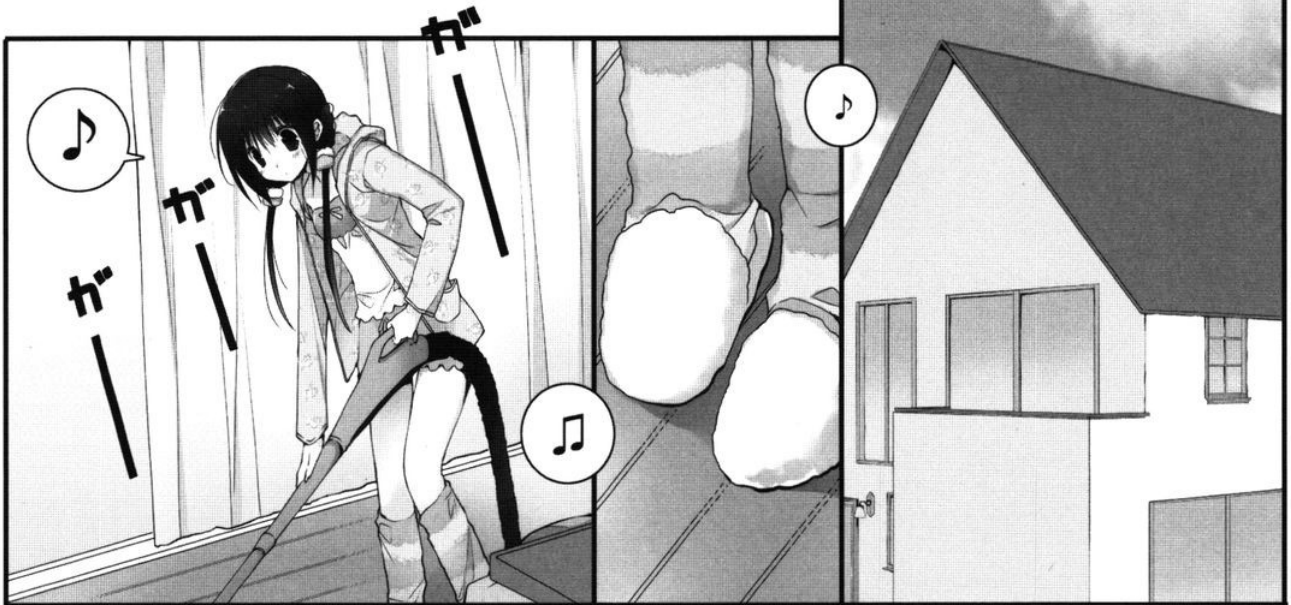

Yadom is a rather famous inhalant medicine in Thailand.

Breathing in the menthol-like vapour stimulates alertness and is great for hangovers. Plus, all of it is contained within the size of a lip balm package, so definitely give it a try if you can, it was very helpful~. This along with Red Bull saved my ass these past few months. Huff huff (◡ ◡)

Now, time for us to get back to the laidback brother and sister duo. Please enjoy!

PUBLISHER'S IMPRINT

That's enough for today!! As always, it's a last-minute submission just before the deadline... Stop already... I want to stop already... (:D] ㄟ

It's because of this that people say that I look zombie-like around the time of Comiket! Hell yeah, I'm completely Busted!

This time it's spooning with Nana-tsun in the futon♥RUBBING the boobies from behind♥ was what I originally thought, but after drawing it, it became a battle of wanting to laze around VS getting out of bed properly, FIGHT! Or something... On the topic of sleeping schedules, no matter which way I think about it, Nana-tsun doesn't seem like the type to oversleep, plus my brother and all my friends don't really sleep apart from at night. As for me, I'm the type of person who would gladly spend all 365 days of the year lying down if I could get away with it(:3[ _ 三 _ ] ε : )Yeah, yeah!!

Even though she clings to her Onii-chan so much, Nana-tsun doesn't ever make the first move... It seems that without Onii-chan meeting her halfway, she would never ask to do 4 things by herself. They get along but still ultimately dance around the subject, instead of just getting down and having sex normally.

Even the physical contact is within the acceptable boundary for siblings, honestly, why do they even have sex at all...? (lol)

This sort of tension and restlessness, going to sleep even while their mind is completely fixated on the other person, this sort of tentative, first date cautiousness is distinctive of relationships like this, call it big-heartedness or rawness, whatever you will.

Because of the Winter and Summer Comikets, it seems that the story releases are quite biased towards their respective seasons. I want to try spring and autumn based seasonal storylines too once in a while. Like flower-viewing or something, I love cherry blossoms.

I wanna daydream about nothing in particular while sipping my drink... (´ω`)

Thank you to those of you who pick up and enjoy the new Imouto book everytime Comiket comes around... Mnn... I'm gonna do my best... If only I could work faster... I even thought about trying to release a special edition with Nakai-san, buuuuuut...

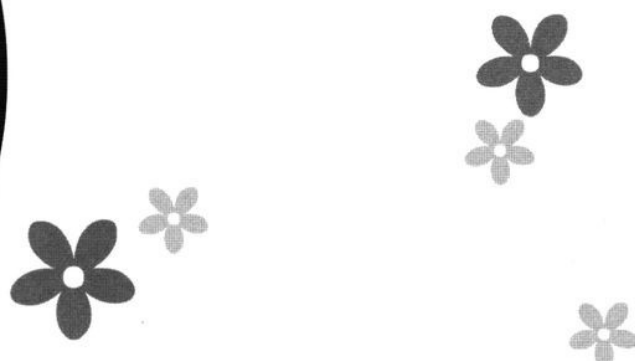

I want to release another 4 doujin similar to 3.5. Well, this is going along fine as it is, so I want to live up to everyone's expectations. The Twitter reactions after the releases become my source of motivation... Thank you very much... It would make me very happy if you were to tweet your thoughts. I always watch the search~

Thanks again to Tomoe-san for helping with the grey-scaling for this release... You're always a great help... Thank you so, so much...

Well then, let's get along well in the coming year as well!

I want to release the GranBlue book that I keep on dropping too~
