Fortified City of Reyseal

Town at the border of the earldom.
Due to its location, Reyseal was ravaged by many battles during the war.
Post-war, however, it has flourished as a thriving merchant city.

The Slums

Southern district, across the canal.
Post-war, its reconstruction was delayed,
and it became a home for vagabonds and
the destitute.

Clarity Orphanage

Church orphanage.
Home to a number of children,
with priests providing care.

The White Forest

Perpetually shrouded in a deep fog.
None who have entered have ever returned.
Some children found Tia, collapsed and near death at the edge of the forest.

Hello, Minato here.

I decided to take a break from the Lord Hikaru series, and do a medieval fantasy story that I've been wanting to draw for a long time now.

Like I said in the afterword of my previous work, "Lord Hikaru's Cunning Plan <Yuugao>", I wanted to do a different kind of rape story this time! And as I was writing it, it kept getting longer. Until this ended up more like a prologue to the story itself. In the second volume, I plan to have Tia brutalized by tentacles and other horrible things.

My partner was like "I'm pretty sure brown skin won't stand out properly against tentacles," but I went ahead anyway.

Since this is my first medieval fantasy world, I tried to come up with proper worldbuilding and such, but it's so hard to think of everything! It's a sword-and-sorcery kind of world. I have all sorts of information written down in a notebook about things like the state and development of civilization in the world, but fundamentally I'm still writing an eromanga, so I couldn't really use most of it in this volume.

I'm very sorry for switching stories like this, but rest assured that the next installment of the Lord Hikaru series, "Fujitsubo", is still coming in the summer. Since Hikaru has done a bit of a "face turn" and become quite a decent, sympathetic character, I wanted to have a real scumbag human in this one!

I really hope I get into Comiket this summer.

Thank you for reading. m_m
